TOO MUCH IDLENESS IN AMERICA TODAY

SAYS THE REV. R. E. SNODGRASS LAST NIGHT

WAS FIRST OF A SERIES

Christian Church Minister to Deliver Number of Sermons on "What's the Matter?"

"There is too much idleness in America today," said the Rev. R. E. Snodgrass in his introductory sermon on, "What's the Matter?" last night at the Christian Church. This was the beginning of a number of sermons to be preached by the Christian Church minister on the general subject of "What's the Matter?" The sermon next Sunday night will be, "What's the Matter with the Church?"

"Crimes are being committed by young men and boys who ought to be at work," continued the Reverend Mr. Sondgrass. "We hear throughout the country today the commandment, "On the seventh day, thou shalt rest' but we do not listen to the other equally important one, 'Six days thou shalt labor. The idle brain is the devil's workshop.

"Another thing the matter with us today is that there are entirely too many laws. During the last session of Congress, over 15,000 bills were introduced. How could any lawyer in America know all about our laws when there are so many cumbersome ones on our statute books? It is getting so that a good, law-abiding citizen must be extremely careful least he violate one of the petty laws of our country. At every session of our Legislature and Congress, we keep on adding a list of unnecessary laws. A super-abundance of laws will produce anarchy.

"A third thing the matter with our country today," continued Mr. Snodgrass, "is that there are too many hirelings. It would be a great thing for all of us if more men would go into business for themselves. We need many more small business men instead of just a few big ones.

"Then, another thing the matter with our country is that we have a lack of interest in the real vital things and try to discover the under currents which are working in our society today. We do not think things through as we should."

The remedy for the ills of America is a greater love for God and for men with "all thy heart and strength," the Reverend Mr. Snodgrass contended. He said we had too much mass action and not enough individualism in our thinking and deeds. The speaker maintained that we followed the mob instead of the dictates of conscience.

The Christian Church minister contrasted the innovation of Shakespearan plays and the painting of Raphael to their effect on the people today. He contended that fifty persons would read a popular cartoon in the newspapers to where one would study the paintings of the great artists, such as Raphael and others of his time. He told how people of the Middle Ages would sacrifice in order to erect great cathedrals but that it was now almost impossible to erect a church building adequate to the needs.

"Fifty years ago, the Bible was the most talked of subject in the world," Snodgrass continued, "but today we spend our time talking about corn, hogs, wheat or politics.

"The greatest colleges of our nation, such as Yale, Princeton and Harvard were founded by the Church. Today, these colleges are the enemies of the Church by their atheistic teachings."

The people in Maryville we can't understand are those who say they have no use for the newspapers, but when they have some ax to grind they think the newspaper is a grindstone.

A Maryville man returned from the bathing beaches the other day and reported that he was shocked. There are a lot of fellows in this town perfectly willing to be shock absorbers.

Will Appear At Chautauqua Here

One a Lusitania Survivor.

Ben Davies, of Welch Male Quartet, Passenger on ill-fated boat—was member of Gwent Welch Choir.

How soon we forget a great tragedy! The sinking of the great ship Lusitania occupied the first page of the daily papers for a few days, then other big events crowded it into the back ground.

The coming of Ben Davies and his Welch Male Quartet on the Maryville chautauqua this summer, will bring to mind the tragedy in which he played a heroic part, but it will also serve to revive other and delightful memories, of the splendid Gwent Welch Choir that appeared on the program in 1916.

Wales is a nation of singing. It is a part of the every day life of the people. As soon as the child is old enough to lisp it is taught to sing, and great national song festivals are annual events.

Mr. Davies has brought to America four of the best male singers of Wales and their programs will furnish delight to our chautauqua audiences this summer.

No type of musical organization is more universally popular than a male quartet, and when such a superb one as that offered by Mr. Davies is the attraction, a day of delightful entertainment may be anticipated.

Shall The United States Enter The World Court?

(By Samuel Adams)

The world court consists of fifteen members, eleven regular judges and four deputies. The eleven constitute the full court, but if they cannot all be present, deputies are called in, and nine judges constitute a quorum. The plan of the court was drafted under a special statute of the League of Nations, with the help of a committee of distinguished jurists, including Elihu Root, amended by the Assembly of the League, and sent to nations, most of them members of the league, for approval.

About forty-five nations have endorsed it.

The judges of the court are elected for nine years jointly by the Council and Assembly of the League of Nations and are eligible for re-election. The League of Nations cannot remove a judge; to do this requires a unanimous vote of the other judges of the World Court. Candidates for election are nominated by national arbitrators who are on the panel of the Hague Convention, though, in case of disagreement, the Council and Assembly of the League may unanimously present another name to each body. The court decides general controversial questions, except those involving "national honor" or internal affair.

All questions are decided by a majority of the judges present, and in case of a tie, the President or his deputy, who are elected by the court itself, casts the deciding vote. The judgment of the World Court is final, and without appeal, but has no binding force except between the parties, and with reference to the particular case decided. The court is to be a sort of advisory body to the League of Nations, and it it to be governed in its decisions by existing laws, national and international.

YES

1. Law and order are the basis of peaceful international relations, and these are not attainable without courts and judicial adjudication of matters in controversy.

2. The United States is part of the Hague Tribunal, the World Court is really an outgrowth of that tribunal, and the judges of the court are nominated by national groups of arbitrators on the panel established by the Hague Convention so that the World Court is really an outgrowth of an institution to which the United States is already committed.

3. The influence and power of the United States is so great that our failure to become a part of the World Court would result in weakening its effectiveness to substitute judicial processes for trial by war.

4. While judges of the World Court are selected jointly by the Council and the Assembly of the League of Nations, the United States, without surrendering any of its prerogatives of becoming in any way a part of the League of Nations, can arrange to elect its own judges on the court, and to pay its fair share of the cost of the court, by making such reservation.

5. Open discussion of controversies as provided by the World Court is one of the best methods of averting war.

6. The long tenure of office of the judges of the World Court—nine years—and the fact that they are eligible to re-election and cannot be removed by the League of Nations, but only by the unanimous vote of the court, assures experienced jurists versed in international law and jurisprudence. The long term protects them from baneful political and financial influences.

7. Our entrance in the World Court is the best evidence we can give of our intention to be law-abiding internationally, as well as nationally, and to outlaw war.

NO

1. The World Court is really a 'World Supreme Court,'' and could be used to defeat the will of the peoples of the world, just as the Supreme Court of the United States, by declaring legislation unconstitutional, has repeatedly thwarted the will of the people as expressed through elected representatives.

2. No court of itself has power to enforce compliance with its decisions, it relies upon police, military and naval forces. A World Court is subject to the same limitations, as proven by the fact that all the major nations in the World Court maintain their military and naval establishments.

3. The World Court does not function with forty-ifve nations in it, as it failed to adjudicate the difference between France and Germany over the Ruhr Valley. Our entrance would not change that condition.

4. Questions at issue between nations involve economic and industrial and not legal questions primarily and should be settled by arbitrators chosen for their knowledge of each issue, and not by judges who may know the law, but are ignorant on economic questions. The legalistic mind is not adapted to settle economic controversies.

5. The long term of judges will remove the incentive to expedition, and the practical impossibility of removing them is dangerous.

6. The World Court is a ruse to get the United States into the League of Nations, which the American people have repudited—otherwise the Hague Tribunal, independent of and separate from the League of Nations, would have been adapted to the tasks of the World Court. It is officially to advise the League of Nations.

7. Peace will be secured and maintained by increasing contacts such as trade and cooperation between the peoples of the world, rather than by courts and judges.

8. The World Court is to recognize existing laws, and those laws recognize war, so the World Court is not a preventative of war, but a perpetuator of war.

We found it mighty hot on our trip yesterday, for the top on our Auto being in need of repair, afforded us little protection from the sun. I am either going to have the old top repaired at the Farmers Auto Supply Shop, or get a new one there.

Wm. Wrigley's Philosophy

While riding on a train recently William Wrigley, the famous gum manufacturer, was approached by a man who addressed him:

"Pardon me, Mr. Wrigley, but do you know you're wasting a lot of money?"

Mr. Wrigley, always anxious to learn anything about his business, asked in return, "How?"

"Why, in advertising!" the man replied. "Your product is so well known you don't need to advertise!"

"My good man,' Mr. Wrigley answered him, "do you know what would happen if we were to cut the engine off from this train?"

"The train would coast along a while and stop, I suppose."

"Exactly," replied Mr. Wrigley, "and that's just what my business would do if I cut off advertising. Advertising is the engine that furnishes the motive power for my business."

Produce Review

Production of eggs is well ahead of demand and lower prices have ruled on all the leading markets.

Storage houses are filling and it is expected that a larger portion of stock will reach the market for current use.

There is no improvement in the market for live fowl and, price changes are normal.

Fresh dressed fowl and frozen poultry are selling at lower prices in sympathy with live prices.

High water and bad roads have interfered with the orderly movement of cream, but taking the country as a whole, a seasonable increase in the make has been noted.

The producing season is later than last year and maximum receipts are not expected until late in the month.

Quite a little Danish and Argentine butter has been received in New York and more is expected.

Forty Million Paid Out for Her Schools

Approximately $40,000,000 of the receipts taken in for education disbursements in the school year of 1921 and 1922 was paid out by Missouri taxpayers for the education of the state's future citizenry—students in the high and elementary schools—according to a report just issued by State Superintendent of Public Schools, Charles A. Lee.

A balance of almost $1,000,000 still remained on the books after all expenses, including teachers' wages, incidental expenses and sums entailed in building projects had been met. Education cost Missouri, according to the report, only one-half of one percent of the assessed valuation of properties, 47.8 cents of such being collected for the express purpose of meeting educational requirements.

About $8,000,000 of the $40,000,000 expended by Missouri taxpayers was appropriated by the state, and about $9,000,000 has been appropriated by the legislature to swell the fund which will meet the expenses of the program mapped out for each of the next two years according to Superintendent Lee.

More than 900,000 school children of the state who are of school age, attended the elementary and high school during the school year of 1921-22. Of these, about 850,000 were white children and the remainder were colored students. For the instruction of the white students 21,422 teachers were employed over the state, and for the instruction of the colored students there were 939 teachers, Mr. Lee said.

About one-fourth of the white teachers employed were men in contrast to a little under a third colored men instructors of the total colored teaching force, the report indicates. More than five thousand of the instructors hired in the elementary and high schools had had experience in teaching for ten years or more. Those employed as instructors for the first time numbered about 3,300, and only 3,577 of them held certificates from the state or from the teacher-training schools. The remainder held certificates from the normal schools or obtained them through the regular county examinations.

The total number of days attendance by all pupils in the state both in the primary and high schools numbered 97,202,928, and the average daily attendance was 579,629, continues the report. The average length of the term in days was 167. This low average is accounted for, it is pointed out, by the much shorter school-year employed in the rural districts.

Mrs. Frank Ridgeway returned to Maryville Saturday morning from a two weeks' visit at her home in Glenwood, Ia. She has been spending several months here with her sister, Mrs. Fred Kurtz, and other relatives.

POLITICANS WATCH MINNESOTA VOTE

PRIMARY TODAY FOR SEN. KNUTE NELSON'S PLACE

14 ARE IN THE RACE

Nine are Republicans, Two Democrats, and Two Farm-Laborites—No Predictions are Made

Washington, June 18—Political leaders of every shade of opinion had their ears cocked to the Northwest today for Minnesota is witnessing a battle royal for the Senate seat left vacant by the death of the venerable Knute Nelson.

The result in the Gopher state primary today is expected to afford an illuminating insight into the political temperament of the grain belt and the politicans of the capital will chart their courses for 1924 with an eye to what is revealed today in the primary and the next month's election.

Fourteen Minnesoteans are in the field for the seat—nine Republicans, two Democrats, and three Farm-Labor candidates. No political leader of consequence could be found in the capital today who would hazard an opinion upon the outcome. It is an off-year puzzle which defies analysis, they declare.

BRAVEST OF GIRLS

Miss Mary Buhner is the bravest girl in America today. Awarded the American Red Cross' "bravest" bravery honor and the bravery medal of the Carnegie institute, her claim to the title is undisputed. Miss Buhner put up a valiant fight in Tampa bay to save Miss Dorothy McClatchie, a friend, from drowning after Miss McClatchie had been attacked and severely injured by a barracuda while bathing. Miss Buhner was a nervous wreck for months after the ordeal, but today is attending college as the protege of the St. Petersbur (Fla.) Rotary club and chamber of commerce. She is twenty years old and was the only girl awarded both the Carnegie medal and the Red Cross trophy.

GOVERNMENT DEPT. HEADS AND CHIEFS IN SESSION

HARDING URGES ECONOMY

Speaking At Annual Meeting He Asks All To Fight Next Year's Deficit

Washington, Jan. 18—In laboring faithfully to reduce the cost of government department heads and bureau chiefs who are the "trustees of the taxpayers," are doing more than to serve the people—they are proving to the world that a way to recover from war excesses and to build anew with exacting watchfulness of all public outlay.

This was the message President Harding delivered this afternoon to the business organs of the government, assembled in Continental Memorial Hall for the annual review of the past year's achievement and to plan new ways of cutting down expenditures during the fiscal year which begins July 1.

In taking stock of what has been accomplished during the year, the president pointed out that an apparent deficit of 92 million dollars had been turned into a surplus of approximately 200,000 and he urged similar and further economies to wipe out the deficit of 30 million dollars, which looms for the fiscal year of 1924. The estimated receipts for 1924 are 3 billion, 658 million dollars, while they figure that 3 billion, 688 million dollars will have to be spent. The President expressed the desire that expenditures be held to less than 3 billion dollars, thus building a substantial surplus.

DAILY NEWS LETTER

TODAY:
Oregon School Law Up Again
The Supreme Court Ruling

By JAMES S. SHEEHY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Portland, Ore., June 18—Decision of the United States Supreme Court in declaring void State statutes prohibiting teaching of foreign languages in schools below the eighth grade has re-centred attention upon the anti-parochial school law passed by the voters of Oregon at the general election last November.

Opponents of the Oregon law view the decision as extremely favorable to their contemplated attack upon the constitutionalify of the anti-private school measure enacted in this State. They believe the two cases are analogous. They point out that the Oregin law clearly comes within the confines of the fourteenth amendment, which was so stressed by the Supreme Court in annuling State measures prohibiting the use of foreign tongues in grade schools.

Forces and organizations which contested the Oregon law prior to alection have held somewhat in abeyance their plan of attack on the constitutionality of the measure pending the court decision in the language cases. It is understood that they will shortly announce their campaign to attack the legal issues involved in the case, with the hope of ultimately having the United States Supreme Court rule once and for all time on the question of private schools.

The Oregon law, passed during one of the greatest political fights and upheavals in the State, provides that after September, 1926, all children between the ages of 6 and 14 years must attend the public schools of the State. Fine and imprisonment are the penalty for parents and guardians who fail to comply with the provisions. The bill, opponents say, would virtually abolish all private schools, including secular and non-sectarian institutions. It was conceded prior to the election that the bill was directly framed to abolish the Catholic parochial school. The Ku Klux Klan was the most ardent supporter of the measure.

Justice McReynolds, in the language cases, is reported to have said: "The fourteenth amendment without doubt denotes not merely freedom from bodily restraint, but also the right of the individual to acquire useful knowledge, to marry, to establish a home and to bring up children, to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience and generally to enjoy those privileges long recognized by common law as essential to the orderly pursuit of happiness by free men."

"I think this is a clear indication that the Oregon school law cannot get by this interpretation of the constitution," said A. F. Flegal, local attorney, who was active during the campaign in fighting the bill. "The Oregon law violates the right to acquire useful knowledge, to bring up children and to worship God according to one's conscience, and it violates a privilege long recognized by common law as essential to the ordinary pursuit of happiness by a free people."

W. L. Brewster, attorney and secretary of non-sectarian organizations which fought the bill, believes that the type of legislation in the two questions is similar. He insists that the legality of the Oregon law can be attacked on the same basis as the language law, pointing out that "if you can't restrict a school as to language it will teach certainly you can't restrict the teaching of private schools."

Some who favor the law are frankly concerned over the new ruling. However, some proponents contend that the language case decision will have no effect upon the constitutionality of the Oregon law. They maintain that it has no direct bearing upon the question embodied in the compulsory school statute.

Miss Mary Hawkins left yesterday morning to visit relatives and friends in St. Joseph and Kansas City during her vacation.

Hopkins Was Defeated by Wilcox 16 to 4

Dixon Struck Out Twelve Men—Brennan Makes Four Hits Out Of Five Chances

The Wilcox baseball nine defeated Hopkins in a game played at Wilcox yesterday by a score of 16 to 4.

The hitting of Brennan, first baseman for Wilcox, was the feature of the game. He made four hits out of five trips to the plate. Hopkins was held to three hits by the clever pitching of Dixon who struck out twelve men. Hopkins used two pitchers. Fuller started the game but was soon driven to cover and was relieved by Cunning in the fifth inning. Wilcox made sixteen hits. Four of the Wilcox men struck out.

Dixon and Turner, former Hopkins batteries, toiled for Wilcox yesterday. The Hopkins batteries were Fuller, Cunning and Carmichael. About 400 persons attended the game.

In the last two or three innings, Dixon was wild and walked several of the Hopkins men. This accounts for the four scores made with three hits.

Barlow Has Religious Services Yesterday

About seventy-five employes of Barlow's Big City Shows held a special religious service at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon on the show grounds, two blocks east of the Maryville High School building. The Rev. R. E. Snodgrass delivered the sermon. Price Doyle and Mrs. F. P. Robinson gave special music. Another special service may be held some time this week, under the auspices of the management of the company. The Rev. J. A. Cooper was present at the services yesterday and pronounced the benediction.

Mrs. A. J. Cramp of Chicago will come to Skidmore tomorrow to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Torrey.

Golf Pointers

Can a player improve his game by practice off the golf course?

Answered by LAURIE AYTON

Always a consistent place winner in the big tournaments—National open, Metropolitan Open, Western Open, and sectional tournaments. Famed for his accuracy and steadiness under fire.

He certainly can. Indoor golf schools and driving into a net are two good ways. What I consider the best, and simplest, method, however, is one which I use myself, and which I call the mirror method. It consists in standing before a mirror and practicing the swing for the drive and practicing putting. In doing this, the eye should be focused on some particular point of the image reflect in the mirror and each point should be practiced until no flaws can be detected in the mirror image. This mirror practice is especially good because the player is not so intent on trying to hit the ball for the last yard of distance and therefore pays more attention to form. Get the proper form and results will follow quickly.

More Is Invested in Auto Than Railroads

2,659,000 Cars Sold Last Year Thru Advertising — Industry Spends $60,000,000 in Advertising.

Some interesting figures on the automobile industry are contained in address "Selling Motor Transportation Thru Advertising," by George M. Graham, vice-president of the Chandler Motor Company. The address was given before the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World at Atlantic City last week. The following extracts are taken from Editor and Publisher:

"Through the desire of ownership created by newspapers, magazines and signboards, 2,659,000 motor vehicles were produced and sold in 1922; $1,500,000,000 are invested in automobile plants; purchases of material in 1922 exceeded $1,250,000,000; we pay in round numbers $400,000,000 to 250,000 employees directly connected with our plants, and our dealers, garages, filling stations, etc., provide employment for perhaps 200,000 more.

"The wholesale value of cars, trucks, parts, accessories and tires sold last year exceeded $2,500,000,000 and a close estimate indicates that motor vehicles used 5,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline.

"A foremost leader in another form of transportation, Elisha Lee of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has generously summed up automobile progress with the statement that in a score of years it has come from practically nothing till its manufacturing plants, selling establishments, fuel, storage, service and repair stations represent a greater investment of capital and employ more hands than the railroad though the latter represents a development of nine decades.

"The wholesale value of automobiles sold by members of the N. A. C. C. last year was $1,362,000,000. Of this sum, I have arbitrarily taken 2½ per cent, as being the average advertising budget allowance made by most companies.

"This would mean in round numbers an expenditure of $34,000,000 by members of the N. A. C. C.

"Ford advertisements would add perhaps $1,000,000 to this total.

"Dealers, who in most cases bear 50 per cent of the cost of newspaper advertising, expend perhaps $10,000,000 more.

"Two per cent of $768,000,000 of the gross volume for tire and accessories manufacturers would add in round numbers $15,000,000 more.

"This makes a grand total of $60,000,000 dollars expended by our industry to sell its wares to the public.

"Within the industry, there seem four outstanding problems brought about by the constantly increasing use of the automobile:

"First, we must finance and expand our highways systems to take care of a volume of traffic which is fast outstripping their capacity.

"Second, tax and license charges against motor transportation must be so restrained that, while adequate, they be not restrictive or punitive.

"Third, motor transportation must be fitted into its proper relationship with other mediums of transportation, so that the economic needs of the public can best be served.

"Fourth, a way must be formed to curtail the number of accidents and fatalities chargeable to the automobile.

"There are those who seem to believe that not enough taxation can ever be piled on the automobile, despite the fact a burden of $340,000,000." that last year in various ways it bore
